

Why Choose Marion Mediation

Focused exclusively on domestic relations.

Divorce, custody, support, alimony, modifications, and domestic violence matters are all within my core focus.

Significant domestic litigation experience.

I understand the pressures on attorneys, counselors, and therapists, as well as the expectations of the court. I also understand the emotional landscape families face in domestic matters.

Thorough preparation.

I review pleadings, motions, and any materials counsel provides. I also conduct separate pre-mediation calls with each party's attorney to understand goals and dynamics.

Calm, structured facilitation.

I create a steady, neutral environment where productive dialogue can occur—even in high-conflict cases.

Creative, persistent problem-solving.

Some cases settle on mediation day. Others need thoughtful follow-up. I don't stop working just because the session ends.

Training that meets the highest standards.

I completed 40 hours of Domestic Relations Mediation training and 14 hours of Domestic Violence Mediation training through MediationCLE, in compliance with Ala. Code § 6-6-20.

Solutions that fit — not just settlements that end the day.

My mission is to help parties reach resolutions that are durable, fair, and workable in the real world.
